

CALL FOR PROPOSALS Global Learning Research Fellowships – Spring 2019

The Office of Global Learning Initiatives (OGLI) invites you to apply for an FIU Global Learning Research Fellowship.

Global learning fellowships fund research collaborations between full-time faculty or staff and undergraduate students. This program is designed to cultivate global learning models that combine research mentorship and innovative collaborative learning strategies. Funded projects will generate new knowledge in the researchers' field and involve methods for using results to facilitate engaged global learning. Funded projects will focus on increasing students' global awareness, global perspective, and global engagement. Global learning fellowship research will build FIU's institutional expertise and expand knowledge of effective global learning strategies in higher education. Recipients will share research findings and teaching strategies through high impact conferences and journals.

Eligibility

Full-time faculty and staff members. Preference will be given to faculty or staff who have attended a global learning professional development workshop and have developed and/or taught an FIU global learning course.

Criteria

Proposals should describe a well-defined project to be carried out in spring 2018 that involves research collaborations between faculty or staff and undergraduate students. Proposals should also describe how the research results will be utilized to facilitate engaged global learning in the curriculum or co-curriculum. Research and teaching strategies should enhance students' global awareness, global perspective, and global engagement. Strong proposals will include a description of how student learning will be assessed and how assessment data may be used to improve the project's effectiveness.

Project Award

Maximum of $4000; up to two projects will be awarded; award funds must be used in spring 2019.

Proposal Requirements

- Application cover letter
- Current CV, including global learning professional development, courses taught, or activities developed
- Project description, including the following: rationale for support; research question(s) and methodology; strategies for using research results in the classroom or in the co-curriculum to promote collaborative global learning; student learning outcomes; strategies for assessing learning and using assessment data for continuous improvement; budget
- Letter of endorsement from department chair or supervisor

To apply, submit application package by October 26, 2018 to goglobal@fiu.edu with "2019 Global Learning Research Fellowship Proposal" in the subject line. A committee will evaluate proposals and awards will be announced by November 30, 2018. Joint faculty proposals will be accepted.

Questions regarding the details of proposal preparation should be sent to: Hilary Landorf, Executive Director, Office of Global Learning Initiatives, landorfh@fiu.edu.
