Research Paper and Presentation

Research Paper

The purpose of this course is to understand how food can be used for more than just nourishment. For this assignment each group will produce a 10 page Times New Roman, single spaced, research paper.

This research paper will explore an ethnic / cultural cuisine that is different than your own, and not covered in class. All topics must be submitted to the professor through canvas by week 4 (Thursday Sept 13) with the names of the students in the group (maximum of 5). This is to ensure that each group has different topics and is relevant to this course.

The topics that you should cover in this research paper should include:

- History of the cuisine
- Restrictions or Dietary practices
- Customs of the cuisine
- Popular food dishes
- Feasts / celebrations and what they represent

This paper will follow APA format and must be have a proper bibliography for all information that is used.

exam time. If there is an issue please tell me immediately. If you leave the exam room it will be assumed that your submission was successful and no issues occurred.

Discussions
Keep in mind that your discussion forum postings will likely be seen by other members of the course. Care should be taken when determining what to post.

Tips for Electronic Discussions (adapted from Creating Strong Contributions to Electronic Discussions)

- Remember to use your subject line effectively.
- Sign your posting to the discussion; this helps because it:
  - Lets classmates get to know who you are
  - Lets readers know who wrote a particular contribution
  - Supports and enhances your overall conversation online
- Adopt the right tone.
  - Be specific in your writing. For example, include names and examples that explain or make known who you agree/disagree with, why you agree/disagree, and what you want to add to the conversation. This helps other readers follow your ideas and tie them back to the discussion.
  - Invite interaction and collaboration from others. Consider using phrases like "What do you think about my idea?" and "Do you agree with this?" Let readers know you want to hear their opinions.
  - Respect others' thoughts and ideas. Be constructive in challenging different views and explain where you disagree and why, within the rules of "netiquette."
- Techniques
  - Take a chance. Electronic discussions afford the opportunity to brainstorm and think online. The nature of an online discussion is more relaxed than other forms of written communication. Test ideas. See how others can help you look at and stretch your thinking.
  - Don't use fancy formatting or bullets. Remember that online are discussions are text-based. Stick to the basics:
    - Single-space within a paragraph and double-space between paragraphs.
    - Keep your paragraphs short.
  - Consider why it is called a "threaded discussion." Use the "reply" function to respond or reply to a posting. This helps keep the thoughts and threads of a discussion grouped together in order. Use the "new message" function for new thoughts or ideas.
  - Proofread and check the spelling. While online communication is more relaxed, it is not careless communication. Doing a quick proof of your work before you send it may alleviate the need to clarify your posting and save you some time and potential embarrassment.
- Keep your responses to less than 20 lines. Use paragraphs to organize your thoughts.
  - Remember: the longer your response is, the less effective your message becomes.
- You are expected to post to the Discussion Forum each week, with no exceptions.
  - The posting must occur between Thursday 12:01 AM till Thursday 11:59 PM for that particular week’s module
- Each week’s postings will be graded by the instructor within 48 hours of the Discussion Forum’s closing.
- Your posting will be graded based on the rubric provided.
